Riddle

*I am valued by men, fetched from afar, Gleaned on the hill-slopes, gathered in groves,
In dale and on down. All day through the air, Wings bore me aloft, and brought me with cunning
Safe under roof. Men steeped me in vats. Now I have power to pummel and bind,
To cast to the earth, old man and young. Soon he shall find who reaches to seize me,
Pits force against force, that he's flat on the ground, Stripped of his strength if he cease not his folly,
Loud in his speech, but of power despoiled To manage his mind, his hands or his feet.
Now ask me my name, who can bind men on earth, And lay fools low in the light of day.*

Firstly, a heartfelt 'Thank You' for my week's grace due to my personal loss. It was appreciated.

If you have an article, story, poem or piece of art that you would like to share with the Shire, this would be the place to do so ... and I would be the person to contact ... please hurry!!

WATCH THIS SPACE ... for information on an upcoming BAD POETRY COMPETION ...

ATTN: ARCHERS – Would you care to recommend [with or without comment] a book for a future "From the Archer's Shelf"? – just email me the info ...
